USES AND DISCLOSURES FOR TREATMENT, PAYMENT AND HEALTH CARE OPERATIONS

By becoming a client of BFP/RFH, you are giving consent for BFP/RFH to use your protected health information for certain activities, including treatment, payment and other health care operations.

1. Treatment

First of all, we may use and disclose protected health information about you so that BFP/RFH and its professionals and employees can treat you. For example, we may obtain information from other providers about you so that we can be fully aware of your health history. We may also provide protected health information about you to other providers who may assist us with, or consult with us about, your treatment. For example, we may need to disclose information to a case manager who is responsible for coordinating your care. We may also disclose your health information to our clinicians and staff who are directly involved in your care. We may also share protected health information among members of your interdisciplinary treatment team, including treatment team members that are representatives of governmental agencies, representatives of other providers involved in your treatment, and other team members, representatives or advocates on the treatment team who are not health care professionals.

2. Payment

We may also use and disclose protected health information about you so that we may be paid for the health treatment we provide you. For example, we may provide information about your health treatment to your health insurance company, whether government or private, including but not limited to Medicaid, Medicare, or other payors or administrative service organizations, so that we can receive payment for the treatment we have provide you or to comply with the policies of the health insurance company or other payor. These uses and disclosures include determinations of eligibility, reviews as to medical necessity of services, reviews as to whether services are authorized or certified, and utilization reviews to determine appropriateness of services.

3. Health care operations

We may also use and disclose protected health information about you for BFP/RFH health care operations, in other words, those other tasks that we need to perform to deliver quality health services to you. For example, we may use information about your health treatment to evaluate the quality of health care rendered to you by our professionals and staff. We may use or disclose your protected health information for purposes of obtaining and maintaining any licensure, certification, accreditation, and qualifications, for conducting utilization review and for responding to audits.

4. Specific uses and disclosures

The following uses and disclosures of your protected health information may be made without any additional authorization from you. (Not every use or disclosure is listed, but be assured that all uses and disclosures made by BFP/RFH are only those which are permitted under the law):

Health records for minors will normally be released to custodial parents or parents that are otherwise authorized to obtain access to this information, legal guardians, and other legal representatives. There are certain circumstances in which disclosure of the health records of minors to parents is prohibited by law, such as certain records related to prenatal care and birth control, alcohol and substance abuse services, treatment of venereal disease, and other exceptions recognized by law. BFP/RFH will abide by these prohibitions when we are required to do so.
